ALL-CHINESE ARE OFF FOR THE COAST TO MEET PICK OF COLLEGE BALL TEAMS

The All-Chinese ball team is off this evening on the Lurline. For several months Hawaii's speedy Chinese ball-players will barnstorm through the States, taking on college teams and playing a long series before returning to Honolulu.

The team leaves here with ten playing members, a manager and a trainer. At the last moment En Sue was obliged to withdraw from the party, owing to the illness of one of his children. His loss will be greatly felt, but there is a chance of his joining the team later on. Four well-known local Chinese, who are now on the coast, will join the team to insure enough substitutes in case of accident. E. K. Yip of this city goes as manager.

and Sam Hop as trainer. The bookings are being made by Robert Yip, now in Chicago, who has made arrangements for a number of exhibition games. The schedule has been left entirely in his hands, and the players do not even know what teams they will stack up against as yet. The first game, however, will be with the University of California, at Berkeley, after which the men will work through Southern California, and then strike eastward as the season advances.

Besides the manager and trainer, those who leave on the Lurline tonight are Apan, Alice Asam, L. Akama, Jack Yee, Sing Hon, Hang Chack, Kan Yon, Lai Tin, Ah Toon and Ayau. Four others will be added to the squad in the East.

PHYSICAL FITNESS FOR BUSY MEN

BY FRANK A. GOTCH.
(World's Wrestling Champion.)

WHAT "WIND" IS.

When we talk about physical fitness we are apt to look upon the body as a sort of oak tree—of composition of tempered steel.

We expect the athlete to be able to stand any kind of exertion, and when he fails we may be in out of condition or has poor wind.

Ask the average man what wind is and he will answer you something like this: "Wind is your ability to breathe without panting."

Therefore, you assume that your lungs tell the whole story. They do tell some of it, and it is a very important part of it—but there is a considerable portion left untold.

Every time you exercise you pull down waste material. The blood tears it away from the tissues. The veins carry it to the organs of elimination, such as the kidneys, sweat glands and intestines—with a part going to the lungs.

If your tissues are sound there is only a small amount of material torn down and the load in the veins is light. But let there be a great deal of valueless material and the load is heavy.

These poisons dropped on your tongue would either kill you outright or make you deathly sick. What happens, then, when you pile up on your organs of elimination more than they can take care of?

Your blood has to take back some of this poisonous load. You suffer from "auto-intoxication"; that is, you poison yourself.

You feel faint. Your grip fails. Your knees quake. Your breath burns holes in your lungs. You are "winded."

The moment you cease this excessive strain you begin to brighten up, and that is because you have stopped piling up more poisons in your blood, and nature begins to equalize what is already there.

You must see from these facts that "good wind" is the result of long training. When you have taken away the worst of the useless material through exercise you can work a long time without feeling out of breath.

There is real danger in overdoing exercise, and especially if you are obese. You pile a great deal of work on your heart and there is always a safety limit. But after you have torn down the largest part of this adipose mass you find little inconvenience in exercise.

To the ambitious, also a word of caution. If you suspect that your heart is weak, exercise and you should be strangers. If you don't know then go to some physician and have him examine you. If your heart is all right you can stand some pretty fair strains—and you can keep on traveling right up the path of fitness.

Keep in mind what "wind" is, and then you will use judgment in the time you exercise takes up. If you are not fatigued, you are not being poisoned very rapidly—and the longer the route you can take the better your condition becomes.

LIVE NEWS AND NOTES FROM MAUI

(Special Bulletin Correspondence.)

WAILUKU, March 15.—A convention of the Hawaiian Evangelical Church Association of Hawaii for the islands of Maui, Molokai and Lanai will be held at Waihee church, Lahaina, during next week. Reports on church matters, and also reports of the works of the Sunday school superintendents and the presidents and delegates of the Christian Endeavor Societies will also be presented and discussed upon.

Next Sunday being St. Patrick's Day and also Kamehameha 111 Day, a memorial service will be held at the Kahumahu native church in Wailuku in the morning. Members of the native Knights of Pythias, Haleakala Lodge and the Nawaleha Court will be present in honor of the occasion. Kamehameha 111 is also known as King Kaulikeaouli the "Lokomaikai," during whose reign the governments of the United States of America, England and France guaranteed a virtual protectorate or a recognition of the Hawaiian Kingdom and also the people for the first time became owners of the lands they tilled, an event which a few Hawaiian students of economics of today honestly differ.

Tax Assessor J. H. Kuewa of the Second Taxation Division takes the steamer for Honolulu tonight to be present at the meeting of the Board of Equalization at Honolulu next week.

The howling alley at the Wailuku gymnasium, which has been undergoing repairs for several weeks, was reopened to the members last Wednesday evening. The alley is now in the middle instead of on the side. The bowlers have to practice a long time on the new alley in order to get used to it, as the highly polished surface seems to affect in some degree the course a ball takes before it strikes the pins at the other end. One expert at throwing curves declares that the ball refuses to answer and goes straight at the pins instead of performing the required curve movement.

which never failed him at the old howling alley. But as soon as the members get used to the new surface, some phenomenal records will be established which will no doubt receive the attention of the lovers of the howling game in the Territory.

J. R. Bergstrom, of the Bergstrom Music Company, who has been up here for some time tuning pianos but who unfortunately hurt his right foot several weeks ago, in consequence of which he was compelled to spend a few days at the Maluanui Hospital, is out seeing his friends this week. He was at Kula this week reorganizing and enjoying the bracing atmosphere of the southern slopes of Haleakala.

Mrs. Mille Weight, sister of Mrs. Rose Kepoika, who has been sick for several weeks, is able to be out now and her numerous friends are happy at her quick recovery.

The Carson Clarke show at the Wailuku Orphanum has been well patronized for three nights this week. The company played for one night at Paia, and concluded its Wailuku contract last night when another big audience greeted the performers.

A bazaar and entertainment will be given at the Wailuku Kindergarten next Saturday evening, March 23rd. The ladies of Wailuku and Kahului have been preparing articles for sale for the benefit of the Kindergarten, and it is expected that a large number of the friends of the institution will turn out to help a worthy object, and as these fancy sales have always been well patronized in the past those in charge of the bazaar Saturday night of next week fully anticipate the same results.
